GRAVES OF SLAVES

A section of the cemetery on the north is supposed to be where slaves are buried. As a continuation of their status in society while living, these acknowledged owners of someone to mark their passing from this life. The county clerk's records are references to two slaves who are probably buried in this cemetery, but the tells nothing of their lives

George
(Died 7/23/1858, age 26, owned by William L. McNeil)

Henry
(Died 12/15/1860, age 70+, owned by Paul McNeil)

STONES WITH NO NAMES

There are several existing stones with no names. Among them are:

A small stone beside the graves of Samuel and William Clark.

A stone in line with the stones for the three Silva children, but of an older style.

GRAVES WITH NO STONES

In any old cemetery there are people buried whose identities are no longer known. Many never had stones placed on their graves or the stones have disappeared over the years. The McNeil Cemetery is no exception to this and there is nothing the number of burials exceeds the number of existing stones.

There is reasonable evidence that the following are among those who lie in the McNeil Cemetery in unmarked graves.

The location of the first burial in the McNeal Cemetery, the unnamed infant of John and Martha McNeal was died in October 1774, is believed to be beneath a coffin-shaped stone that lies between the two large rectangular stones in the foreground. On the right, behind the infant's grave is the same for the grave of Elizabeth McNeal and her son. The area behind the infant's grave is the site of the first burial in the cemetery. The area behind the infant's grave is the site of the first burial in the cemetery. The area behind the infant's grave is the site of the first burial in the cemetery.

Headstone for the grave of John McNeel. "JOHN McNEEL, ARSON, died 1875 aged 80 years."
